Table Talk

LIE DETECTOR PART 3

Discussion questions and conversation starters based on this weekend's sermon!

1. When was the last time you caught yourself pointing the finger at someone else before fully owning your part in something?

2. What's the most creative "it wasn't me" excuse you've ever given — or heard — that technically had some true facts in it?

3. What's the difference between giving context for a mistake and actually making an excuse?

4. Have you ever blamed something completely inanimate — a stop sign, a parking lot, gravity — for a problem that was clearly yours?

5. Adam's account had true facts in it — and so did Eve's. Why is a story that's partially true often more dangerous than an outright lie?

6. What's the most elaborate story you've ever told yourself to avoid admitting you were wrong — and how long did it take to unravel?

7. Why do you think God asked questions instead of just announcing the verdict? What does that tell us about how he relates to us?

8. Have you ever doubled down on a wrong answer so long that you genuinely forgot what the truth was?

9. How does the way a community responds to honesty shape whether people keep being honest?

10. What's one thing you blamed on "how you were raised" that, if you're honest, was probably just you?
