

Special Note –

Just felt a nudge to bring to your attention the plight of one of our ABCU students. His name is Prince Mator. Some from CC Sonora have helped him along the way in previous semesters. He began as a freshman the same semester we started teaching here and has made it to his final semester before graduating. He is currently halfway through his teaching practicum and, with some sponsorship money now and then plus a campus work grant every semester, he has managed to catch up with past arrears and pay the minimum to begin the semester but still owes $423 of this semester's $815 in fees and has not been afforded a work grant this semester to cover any of that.

He is an average student but has made better progress than some of his classmates who had trouble passing the West Africa Exam and lost some time. When we first met him, he was terribly depressed but has seen God come through in his life and has become settled in hope. We don't know what God intends for him at this time, but if you feel so led, consider a designated scholarship gift for this young man. There is a hard deadline for graduating seniors to pay all fees by Nov 1 or they will be forced to drop and repeat the semester, with another $815 in fees. So, this is a time-sensitive opportunity.

Thank you for praying for this young man, and we pray that it will be God Who leads.
