Master of My Heart

I say, let the Holy Spirit guide your lives.

Then you won't be doing what your sinful nature craves.

Galatians 5:16

Is he the Master of your heart? Fully in control? None of us is perfect in this area. But if you constantly ask him to guide your thoughts, words, and actions, then he has the job of Master of your heart. When trials or mere irritations arrive at your doorstep, if you go to him for direction, then he is in control, right where he should be. Irritations can disappear when you return your thoughts to his plan for you. Your reactions to life are filtered through the lens of God. His peace and love will permeate all you are and do.

You might say, "I don't think that's me. My reactions aren't exactly stellar when life smacks me in the face." Well, something else must be the master of your heart. When it's not God, it's something else. Most likely - it's you. We love to put ourselves as number one. When we are masters of our own heart, our desires come first. What we want goes. Disappointment regularly follows us around. Irritation too. Enough of that! Fix it. Submit yourself to God. He is the author of all things and will gently guide you into the fullness of life. Place God as the Master of your heart. Go to him with all things. Contentment and peace will follow behind your every step.

What areas of your heart do you still want to control? Think about giving him your whole heart. You won't regret it.
