Missions Highlight

Kirk & Juanita McKeetih | Nampa, ID

Since 2016, the Benedicts have served in a remote village in Southeast Asia through their parent organization, New Hope Karnali Ministries. Their region is significantly underdeveloped, with most people living in poverty and practicing subsistence farming. They minister amid the country's two main religions, Hinduism and Buddhism, and many villages oppose Christianity. To minister in this environment, the Benedicts have developed programs for pastor training, church discipleship, and Gospel outreach. Recently, leaders from a nearby Tibetan Buddhist village approached them about starting a school that will provide a quality foundational education before students transfer to larger schools in nearby communities. Because people in this region rarely welcome outsiders or show openness to Christianity, this request presents a surprising and encouraging opportunity. The Benedicts have received all the necessary government approvals and will open the school with two grades in the new school year. Rejoice with them, for God is clearly opening doors into this community. They ask us to pray during this time of uncertainty regarding their visas, that they would remain patient and hopeful as they await a response this fall. To receive a copy of their correspondence with SCBC, email Tom Benson at tomb@scbc.cc.

Believers are called to obey Scripture's command to be baptized by immersion to publicly affirm and portray their union in Christ, and with the church. If you have repented of your sins and placed your faith in Christ but have not yet participated in "believer's baptism," please talk with Pastor David after the service today, or email SCBC at info@scbc.cc.
