Based on the Teaching of Judah Peters: "Day Zero, Day One, Day Two"

Day 1: Dead in Trespasses, Alive in Christ

Reading: Ephesians 2:1-7

Before salvation, every person exists in what Judah Peters called "Day Zero" -- spiritually dead, regardless of how active or religious they appear outwardly. Ephesians 2:1 describes this condition plainly: the natural man is dead in sins and trespasses. Yet God, rich in mercy, does not leave man in that state. He quickens, raises, and seats the believer together with Christ. The transition from death to life is not earned by performance or promised through tears at an altar. It is an act of God applied the moment a soul trusts the gospel.

Day 2: The Gospel That Saves

Reading: 1 Corinthians 15:1-4; Romans 1:16-17

The gospel is not a call to moral improvement, emotional experience, or religious ceremony. Paul defines it with precision in 1 Corinthians 15: Christ died for our sins, was buried, and rose again the third day, all according to the Scriptures. This is the power of God unto salvation -- not the power of a tearful altar call, not the power of a water baptism, not the power of a personal promise to do better. Romans 1:16-17 makes clear that the righteousness of God is revealed through this gospel, received by faith alone. The simplicity of this message is not its weakness. It is its power.

Day 3: Everything You Received on Day One

Reading: Ephesians 1:3-14; 2 Corinthians 5:17-21

The moment a person trusts the gospel, God does not hand them a small spiritual deposit and instruct them to earn the rest. The believer is immediately justified, reconciled, forgiven of all trespasses, sealed with the Holy Spirit, made a new creature, and seated together with Christ in heavenly places. These are not future promises contingent on performance. They are present realities secured by Christ's finished work. Philemon 6 teaches that the communication of faith becomes effectual by acknowledging every good thing already placed in the believer. You are not working toward completeness. In Christ, you are already complete. The challenge of Day One is not doing more -- it is believing more fully what has already been done.

Day 4: Renewing the Mind, Acknowledging the Truth

Reading: Romans 12:1-2; Philemon 1:4-7; Colossians 3:1-4

Day Two is not a second stage of earning salvation. It is the ongoing discovery of what was received on Day One. Paul's instruction in Romans 12:2 calls believers not to be conformed to this world but to be transformed by the renewing of the mind. The renewing agent is the word of truth rightly divided. Philemon 6 ties this directly to effectiveness in faith: when believers acknowledge every good thing already placed in them by Christ, their faith becomes active and fruitful. A mind fed on condemnation, law, and performance will produce spiritual paralysis. A mind renewed by the truth of grace will produce a life that reflects Christ naturally and powerfully.

Day 5: Where You Are in the Bible, and Why It Matters

Reading: Ephesians 3:1-9; 2 Timothy 2:15; Romans 16:25-26

One of the most clarifying questions a believer can ask is simply this: where am I in the Bible? Paul identifies the present age as the dispensation of the grace of God, a mystery hidden since the world began but now made manifest through the apostle Paul. Romans to Philemon contains the primary doctrine given to the body of Christ for this age. When believers understand this, confusion gives way to clarity. The command of 2 Timothy 2:15 is to rightly divide the word of truth -- to distinguish what God said to Israel under the prophetic program from what He has revealed to the body of Christ through the mystery. Knowing where you stand in Scripture is not a minor theological point. It determines how you understand salvation, identity, and calling.
