Knowing, The Battle Belongs to the Lord

His older brother Eliab, dismissive of David and upset that he has left the sheep behind, accuses him of voyeurism, a wish only to see the battle. David answers in the manner of younger brothers throughout the ages, "What have I done now? It was only talk" (1 Sam 17:29). The following verse is unobtrusive but definitive: "And he turned away from him." David turns from Eliab, no longer a child, striking out on an independent destiny.

The troops hear David's words and report them to Saul. Saul naturally brushes aside the possibility that this stripling can fell a giant. David insists, boasting that he has killed both lions and bears in his years as a shepherd, but never mentioning his skill with a sling-shot. In a piquant touch, the rabbis further tell us that David's clothes are made from the wool of the sheep that he saved from the claws of beasts, in thanks to God for his deliverance. The rabbinic commentators in the Midrash suggest that David's triumph over wild beasts foretold the possibility of future greatness. Perhaps the tradition assumed he must have received the hint from his own experience, since God has not told David he must kill Goliath, David just knows.

Family Night

The Renewed Youth Rally last weekend was AMAZING! And for at least one of our teens, LIFE CHANGING! I want to thank the congregation for their prayers and support that allowed us to attend. The past two TNT's (Teen Night Together) have been a lot of fun as well! We had great fellowship at all three of these events, and I love that our Teen Room is FULL on Wednesday nights, currently! What a kick off to the summer it has been!

Unfortunately, I cannot be there this Sunday, but a special thanks to Daniel Witcher for covering for me on what can only be called Six - Seven (6/7) day! IYKYK! I'll be back Wednesday night to discuss "Following Jesus Daily", which was suggested by Whitley Williams and was selected by random drawing. I'm really looking forward to it!

Have a great week! Summer Calendars available now!
