“Stop Figuring it Out”
Proverbs 3:5-6

So, you know that moment when it seems everything in life changes unexpectedly and you freeze? Someone you know is stuck in a situation with no clear options. You’re facing a decision with possibilities you never saw coming. Or maybe you’re just exhausted—too tired to think your way through what’s in front of you.

This Sunday, we’re going to begin answering the question: What do you actually do when you can’t figure it out alone?

We’ll be exploring Proverbs 3:5-6, where we’re invited to trust God with all our heart rather than leaning on our own understanding, and to submit all our ways to Him so He can make our paths straight. It sounds simple until you’re the one late for an appointment while stuck in traffic—or stuck in a season of life you didn’t plan for.

We won't be talking about having all the answers. It’s about discovering what happens when we stop trying to solve everything ourselves. Whether you’re 17 or 90, whether you’re navigating a major life decision or just trying to make it through the week, this hits home.

We’re gathering Sunday morning because we believe something powerful happens when we bring our real questions and our real life into God’s presence together. You’ll probably hear stories that feel familiar. Maybe some bad jokes. You’ll hear Scripture that speaks directly to where you are right now. And you’ll leave knowing you’re not alone in this.

Bring your family. Bring a friend who’s been on your mind. Bring your tired brain and your honest questions.

See you all soon!
