

Sermon Questions from June 21

Text: Psalm 96

The psalm begins with the command to "sing a new song." How does your current walk with God inspire you to express something new or fresh in response to Him?

The psalm says God possesses strength and beauty. How does this combination shape your view of God as more than just a stern judge?

What does it mean to worship the Lord in holy splendor? And why should we tremble before him in worship?

Pastor Dan talked about some issues with worship in the western world? What are some trends that you've seen that are concerning to you around the idea of worship?

Can you think of a time in your life when you felt a strong sense of awe in worship?
