

Logan McGuire - Testimony

When I was two my mother passed away. My father stepped up to the plate for me and my brothers to do it all and he is doing great and more than we could ever ask for. He is a great Dad. When I was about eight years old I was terrible at getting up for school. I would not get up or dress for school and my dad was going to be late for work. I said I would scream and the police would come and he would be in trouble. So he called my grandma to come over. She said do you want to get dressed or go to school in your pajamas? Your dad will carry you out to my car and it's okay if you scream and the police come. When they see you do not want to go to school they will take you in your pajamas and walk you into school. So I got up and got dressed and she walked me into school and I never did that again.

It seemed like I always gravitated myself towards the kids at school that were always getting in trouble and getting attention and everybody knew who they were, and I wanted to be like them. But I was never satisfied. I started feeling guilty when I did something I knew in my head was wrong. I started feeling like I was being nudged by God in my heart. I prayed up to God and said if this guilt I am feeling is your calling for me to change, then can you help me change. You never know what you can do until you take the first step. I was the most important person to me in my life, but after opening up my heart to the Lord, God is now in charge of my life.

If I had a friend that had moved away and then came back in about a year, there would be noticeable differences in my life that they will see in theirs. He noticed I had a bible on my desk in my room sitting out, and that I went to Church every Sunday. I didn't laugh or give in to the dirty jokes or tell any to myself. I was more calm and I wasn't in charge of my life anymore and that someone else was in control of my life. God gave me more self-esteem and more confidence to live more Christlike. Each and every day is a blessing to wake up for another day of life as it is never promised, so everyday I wake up I thank God for another day to grow and draw closer to our Savior.

A meaningful bible verse to me is Romans 8:28: "All things work together for good to those who love God and are called according to his purpose."
