Sing With Meaning

In her book Say and Seal, Susan Warner wrote about a little boy who was terrible health. His mother read him a poem that would become one of the most recognizable lyrics in Christian history. The poem began: “Jesus loves me, this I know, for the Bible tells me so. Little ones to him belong. They are weak, but He is strong.”

We don’t need to know the story behind the composition of every hymn we sing in worship, but we do need to understand the meaning of the hymns we sing. It only makes sense that if we are to express praise to God that we would understand the lyrics.

Paul wrote extensively about how important it was to have a complete understanding of all worship activities. In Corinth, the church’s assemblies were an unorganized mess. They didn’t use the Lord’s Supper correctly (I Cor. 11:20-22), their unique gift of speaking in tongues was misused (14:1-5), and women were not submitting to male leadership in worship (11:3). Within this context, Paul wrote, “I will pray with the spirit and I will pray with the mind also; I will sing with the spirit and I will sing with the mind also” (14:15). If we are not engaged mentally and spiritually with every aspect of worship, our worship will not be pleasing to God. That is why Paul concluded his lengthy discussion of worship practices by stating, “But all things must be done properly and in an orderly manner” (14:40).

The next time you worship, in order to help you “sing with the mind also,” why not try...

(1). ...singing every word. Singing in worship is not about the quality of the singing; it is about expressing praise to God. Take advantage of every word of praise.

(2). ...paying attention to the lyrics. Mumbling your way through a song is no way to praise God. Each song expresses a truth. Focus on that truth and sing the song as if you believe that truth.
