

CLASSY

Merriam-Webster Dictionary defines “classy” as, “having qualities that make someone or something special and attractive; showing impressive character.” When was the last time you heard someone described as being classy? I assume it has been a while, because culture does not promote it, and very few parents teach it to their children.

Classiness is made up of many components. It includes integrity, dignity, politeness, modesty, deference, self-respect, and nobility. A classy person holds the door open for someone else. A classy man is interested in the well-being of the women and children around him, even if they are not related to him. He does not equate manliness with a domineering personality. He abstains from cursing and telling dirty jokes. He is eager to help those in need without seeking credit. His clothes are clean, and he dresses for the occasion, even if he is uncomfortable. He is on time. He provides for his family. He is a giver, not a taker.

A classy woman is not interested in being shocking or rebellious. She knows that her worth is not determined by her physical features, and she refuses to be treated as an object. She sacrifices for her family and takes pride in being her husband’s helper. “Her children rise up and bless her; her husband also, he praises her, saying: ‘Many daughters have done nobly, but you excel them all’” (Prov. 31:28-29). Her attitude is positive when it is easy to be negative. How many celebrities would you consider to be classy? I can’t think of many, either. Popular culture featured classy celebrities in the 1950s and 1960s, but they are few and far between these days.

Our Christian example will be enhanced if we are classy people. If we are respected, we will be trusted. If we are trusted, the lost will listen to our message.
