

THE COMPANY WE KEEP

King David committed grievous sins one night, and that one night—that one solitary evening—changed his life forever. He was in Jerusalem while Joab, his servants, and the rest of Israel were out besieging Rabbah. He rose from his bed in the evening for unknown reasons. Maybe he could n’t sleep. Maybe he heard something and he went to investigate. Maybe he just wanted to see what Jerusalem looked like empty. Or maybe he knew Bathsheba, a woman “very beautiful in appearance” (II Sam. 11:2), would be bathing on her roof at that time. Why he got out of his bed makes no difference. What he did after he got out of his bed makes all the difference.

David summoned the woman to his house, slept with her, and she became pregnant. In an effort to hide his sin, he summoned Bathsheba’s husband, Uriah, from the battle so he could spend the night with his wife. But her husband refused. David then sent Uriah to the front of the war to be killed, and that’s what happened. I wonder if any of that would’ve ever happened if David had been surrounded by faithful friends and family that night. I wonder what would’ve happened if there were people there to distract him from staring at a naked woman. It’s safe to say that David wouldn’t have coveted and then committed adultery and murder.

What if the other apostles were standing around that fire with Peter when he was asked if he was one that knew Jesus? What if Eve knew that God was aware of her conversation with the serpent? First Corinthians 15:33 states, “Bad company corrupts good character.” But we also see many examples where no company weakened the character of otherwise faithful people.

Good company promotes good character.
