REVIEW last week:

Summary

This past Sunday, Pastor John began to speak on the importance of applying biblical knowledge to our lives. The power and life within God's word speaks directly to individuals regardless of their circumstances. From here we started our dive into 1 Peter.

Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, writes to the "elect exiles scattered throughout." Believers are "exiles" or "sojourners" because their true citizenship is in heaven, not on earth. All faithful believers throughout history have acknowledged themselves as strangers and exiles on earth, seeking a heavenly homeland. We are to focus on our heavenly citizenship and the return of Christ, remembering our mission, the ministry of reconciliation.

Key Points

- True wisdom comes from the application of knowledge, not just its accumulation.
- The apostolic office was unique, established by Christ to be eyewitnesses and foundational to the church, and it ceased with the original apostles.
- Jesus Christ is the sole cornerstone and head of the church, not any human leader or institution.
- Believers, both Jew and Gentile, are united in Christ as a 'new man' and 'fellow citizens' built on the foundation of the apostles.
- Christians are temporary dwellers in this world, not permanent citizens, and their true citizenship is in heaven.

Key Passages of Scripture:

- Revelation 21:9-14 illustrates the New Jerusalem, where the foundations of the city walls bear the names of the 12 apostles, reinforcing their foundational role in the church.
- Ephesians 2:11-22 explains how both Jews and Gentiles are united in Christ, becoming a "new man" and "fellow citizens" built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ as the cornerstone.
- Hebrews 11:13-16, the "Hall of Faith," emphasizing that all faithful believers throughout history have acknowledged themselves as strangers and exiles on earth, seeking a heavenly homeland.
