Senior Pastor John Riggs

REVIEW last week:

Summary

What does it truly mean to be grateful for our salvation? Pastor John took us on a deep and honest journey into the condition of our hearts, drawing from 1 Peter chapter 1 and the parable of the ten lepers in Luke 17. We are reminded that the Old Testament prophets longed to understand the salvation we now freely possess, and that even angels stand in awe of God's redemptive plan unfolding in our lives. Yet despite this extraordinary gift, we so easily drift toward ingratitude, self-sufficiency, self-centeredness, and pride. The parable of the ten lepers holds up a mirror to our own spiritual condition. All ten cried out for mercy, all ten were healed, but only one turned back to worship at the feet of Jesus. We must remember the depth of our need before God met us, and to let that remembrance reignite a genuine, overflowing gratitude that shapes how we live, how we love, and how freely we share our faith with others.

Key Points

- Peter's letters, like those of Paul and John, consistently recenter the minds of believers on the greatness of their salvation and stir up gratitude for God's mercy
- Four tendencies in human nature that pull believers away from God are ingratitude, self-sufficiency, self-centeredness, and pride
- A half-gospel that omits the wrath and judgment of God produces believers who do not understand what they have been saved from, and therefore lack genuine gratitude
- Satan's strategy in the Garden of Eden was to sow seeds of pride and ingratitude by convincing Adam and Eve that they did not need God
- The prevailing cultural attitude treats God as though He is fortunate to have people join His cause, effectively flipping the gospel's true message

Key Passages of Scripture:

- 1 Peter 1:10-13 - The prophets searching and inquiring about the grace to come, and the call to prepare minds for action
- 2 Timothy 3:1-5 - The description of people in the last days, including being ungrateful, lovers of self, and having a form of godliness but denying its power
- Luke 17:11-19 - The ten lepers healed by Jesus, with only one returning to give thanks
