President's Perspective

October 2026

Thank you for your investment in seeing souls saved and lives changed around the world. Your missions giving is just that—an eternal investment.

I wanted to share this update with you from Alan Brooks, who leads our Papua New Guinea Bible Project:

I have often been asked the following: Do the Bible projects really impact lives, and are they changing lives? While I was preaching on a Sunday at a local church in Papua New Guinea, a young man came up to me. His name was Samson. He told me that I had given him a Bible after I had presented the Gospel of our Lord Jesus while he was in grade 9 at Mount Hagan Secondary School. He trusted the Lord as his Saviour and started attending a local Baptist church in his hometown. He reminded me how I challenged the young people to not drop out of school, to work hard, to graduate, and to go on to university. Then I would say, "You are the future of Papua New Guinea." He wanted me to know that he did graduate, went on to university, and is now a CPA with the government. He also introduced me to his wife and twin boys, Caleb and Joshua. Some people may question whether a Bible project really impacts lives; ask Samson if it impacted his life and family. By the way, he is a leader in his local church.

Again, as you give to missions, you are making an eternal investment and an eternal difference in the lives of people around the world. Thank you for your faithfulness in giving so that people can hear about eternal life through Jesus Christ. May the LORD richly bless you!

In Christ,

David H. Snyder
