Dear Pastor and Church Family,

I want to share an exciting update, an urgent need, and a financial request with you in this letter. As I look back over the past two years at Medical Missions Outreach, one word continually comes to mind: grateful.

I am grateful for what God has done, for the doors He continues to open around the world, and especially for churches like yours that have faithfully stood with us.

Paul's words to the church at Philippi express much of what I feel toward you:

I thank my God upon every remembrance of you... For your fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now.
Philippians 1:3, 5

That phrase—"fellowship in the gospel"—beautifully describes our relationship. You are not simply donors to Medical Missions Outreach. You are partners with us in the Gospel.

God has allowed this ministry to grow tremendously over the past two years. More teams are serving, more missionaries and local churches are asking us to come alongside them, and thousands of patients are receiving compassionate medical care while being introduced to the Great Physician. The 22 churches we partnered with last year saw over 4,000 people from their communities place their faith in Christ. God is growing His church through medical missions.

That growth has meant growing the team behind the teams. Every trip requires people working long before our volunteers ever board an airplane—coordinating with missionaries, preparing volunteers, purchasing and transporting supplies, managing travel and logistics, maintaining clinical standards, overseeing finances, and caring for the many details necessary to serve effectively.

Our staff has been vital to the growth of our ministry outreach. And as the ministry has grown, so have the financial resources required to sustain it.

For many years, we have intentionally tried not to ask our supporting churches for anything beyond the faithful monthly support you have already committed. We know MMO is only one of the missionaries and ministries your church supports, and we never want to take your generosity for granted.

But partnership also means being willing to transparently share our needs with each other.

After much prayer and consideration, we have reached a place where I need to share one of those needs with you. While the ministry has continued to grow to enable local churches to reach thousands more with the Gospel, our giving has not grown at the same pace as the financial needs before us.

So, as we approach the end of this year, would your church prayerfully consider making a special year-end gift of $1,500 to Medical Missions Outreach?

I do not make that request lightly. For some churches, $1,500 may be possible. For others, God may lead you to give a different amount. And for some, an additional gift may not be possible at this time. Whatever the case, we are thankful for you. Your faithful monthly support already demonstrates your commitment to this ministry.

I simply believe that true partners should share both the victories and the needs.

And there is so much for which to praise the Lord. Through the faithful partnership of churches like yours, thousands of people have been cared for this year, missionaries and local churches have been strengthened, and the Gospel has been shared around the world.

When Paul thanked the church at Philippi for supporting his ministry, he wrote:

Not because I desire a gift: but I desire fruit that may abound to your account.
Philippians 4:17

That is our heart.

The fruit God is producing through Medical Missions Outreach does not belong to MMO alone. You have a part in it. Every church that prays, gives, sends, and stands with us shares in what God is accomplishing.

Thank you for your prayers. Thank you for your faithful giving. And thank you for your "fellowship in the gospel."

It is an incredible privilege to serve alongside you.

For the Gospel,

Bradley Edmondson
