A NOTE FROM THE EDITOR:

Your Legacy

-Jeanne Hoover

Psalm 78:5-6: He commanded our forefathers {generation one} to teach their children {generation two}, so the next generation would know them, even the children yet to be born {generation three} and they in turn would tell their children {generation four}.

One of DuBois Light & Life's core values is utilizing the strengths of every generation to extend God's love.

Everyone has a legacy. Your legacy is what you will pass on to the next generation and onward. This includes life experiences, beliefs, heritage, knowledge, and faith.

Christians have a special duty to pass on their legacy, especially from a Christian perspective. You can be sure family, as well as others around you, will note what is said, actions, and attitudes. This is what will be left behind in people's minds.

This will be your legacy.

Sharing your life experiences and how God has worked in your life, telling of the miracles and wonders you have seen only adds to your legacy and can also add to the legacy of the next generation. Don't be afraid to tell how you were before you met Christ and how you changed afterward. If you don't share, perhaps your legacy will be the person they spent time with but don't really remember very much about.

We can and should be intentional in building a legacy that will be passed to the next generation. After all, we are children of the King.

What could be better than that?

Grandparents and parents (future grandparents) as well as spiritual grandparents, be an example of joy and love. Teach by living. Be an example of Christ-like living.

With the help of the Holy Spirit, the guidance of the Bible, and the grace of the Lord Jesus, we have been provided a legacy, a spiritual heritage for our children, grandchildren, and for future generations.
