This is the story of one guy who was cut from his middle school basketball team yet went on to play professionally and train others. That guy is Jeffery D. Johnson, and when he answered a God-given call on his life, he started something great: his very own basketball training facility where training is also discipleship-making. An inspiring documentary for anyone with a dream, a calling, or a gift they can share with the world. This is Memphis Basketball Trainers: The Start of Something Special directed and narrated by Caleb Suggs, produced by Jeffery D. Johnson, and made in association with Studio Suggs.
