LIFE

People helping people live out the unexpected love of Jesus every day.

"The one who walks with the wise will become wise, but a companion of fools will suffer harm." Proverbs 13:20

Kerry and I are preparing to teach 1 and 2 Kings on Sunday mornings in our Marriage & Families Connect Group later this month. As we've read through 1 Kings this past week and finished chapter 12, one question has stayed with me: How often do we make decisions that may affect others based on our feelings, the counsel we want to hear, or an overreaction?

In chapter 12 of 1 Kings, Israel is preparing to make Rehoboam king. The people, along with Jeroboam, bring him a request before moving forward. Rehoboam tells them to return in three days for his answer.

Rehoboam receives counsel from two groups, and their advice points him in opposite directions. The older men urge him to go easy on the people at the beginning of his reign, encouraging those who are uncertain to remain loyal. But he rejects their counsel and turns to his peers for the answer he wants to hear. They recommend the opposite approach: fear and intimidation.

Yup, the decision of Rehoboam to receive counsel that "tickles his ears" sets everything into a political and social chaos.

As I read chapter 12, God laid this question on my heart: "What decisions am I making based solely on my feelings or my desire to have my own way?" Instead of looking for agreement, am I seeking wise counsel through prayer, His Word, and people who will speak truth to me?

Friends, wisdom begins with how we approach God: with awe, reverence, respect, and humility. As we seek Him and love Him with all our heart, mind, and soul, we come ready to listen rather than insist on our own way.

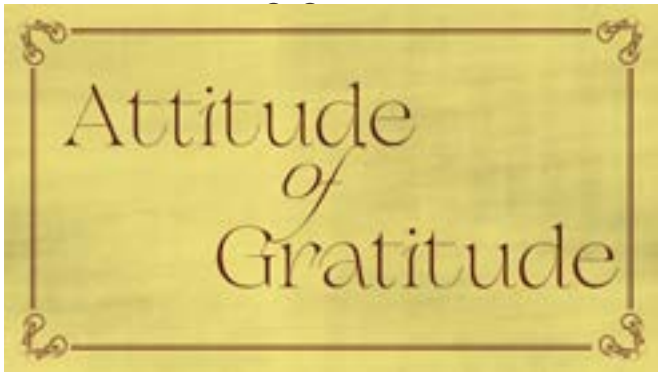

"The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge; fools despise wisdom and discipline." Proverbs 1:7

Who do you choose to seek for counsel?

-Joe
