LIFE

People helping people live out the unexpected love of Jesus every day.

This is one of my favorite times of year. There is a sort of relaxing that happens once the last big youth event comes to a close—like when a stretched rubber band returns to something like slack. It's a good time to look back and evaluate.

On the other hand, this time of year brings a sense of anticipation—for Autumn, for the next wave of youth activities, meeting new students and connecting with returning students.

We made a lot of memories this summer! Youth camp, June 6–10, was super smooth. The schedule changes which the camp planning team made (moving recreation to the morning, church group to the evening, offering breakout sessions) really worked out. Students related with no drama, and although most already believed the Gospel, they took the reminders against idolatry seriously.

Vacation Bible School, June 13–17 (along with days on each end for set up and tear down), was a time of service for the youth ministry. Students plugged in deeper through volunteering, and made memories with kids younger than them.

Next was Worship4Life! and Mission Trip. A number of students went to both, and I am so thankful for the significant investment of time in our ministry and in their personal growth. At W4L!, the Lord refreshed me through musical worship and gave me opportunities to mentor students from other churches. Mission Trip was... Wet? Fun? Hard? Hilarious? All of the above and more—it's going down in my books as a great trip.

This is my first real summer being done with my doctorate. We've done some new things: letting our service teams organize events for working together and fellowshiping with other groups. I'm optimistic about the future of student ownership and organization in our youth group!

It's been a rich summer, and I am proud of our students and thankful for the parents and other adults that pour into them!
