6 Ways a Christian Husband Cherishes His Wife

By Le Ann Trees

Does the Bible allow a Christian husband to treat his wife any way he decides is best? Does a Christian wife have to submit to her husband at all times? The apostle Paul has the following to say to Christian husbands and wives regarding their conduct toward each other:

Now as the church submits to Christ, so also wives should submit in everything to their husbands. (Eph. 5:24)

However, let each one of you love his wife as himself, and let the wife see that she respects her husband. (Eph. 5:33)

The Greek word for “submit” in Eph. 5:21-24 is hypotassó, which refers to a wife’s “recognition of an ordered structure” in which her husband is the person to whom she should show appropriate respect “as to the Lord”. Similarly, the Greek word for “respect” in Eph. 5:33 is phobētai, which means to have a profound measure of reverence/respect for someone.

While some Christians have wrongly used these Bible verses as an excuse for husbands to mistreat their wives, the verses actually communicate the vast responsibility a husband has to care for his wife and the wife’s duty to honor her husband. Here are six things (in no particular order) every Christian husband should give his wife:

1. Love

A Christian husband should love his wife as he does himself and always protect her from all harm (Eph. 5:25-29). He should do his best to “nurture and cherish” his wife in the love of Christ as he would his own flesh and tend to her spiritual, emotional, intellectual, and physical needs.

2. Respect

A Christian husband should always respect his wife. When Paul tells wives to submit to their husbands in Eph. 5:24, he does not mean that wives must endure abuse, neglect, or mistreatment of any kind by their husbands. Rather, Paul is reminding the church that a wife is under the leadership of her husband. A Christian husband must always show his wife honor, both publicly and privately, and protect her dignity and reputation from any and all slander (1 Peter 3:7).

3. Spiritual Leadership

A Christian husband should provide his wife with spiritual leadership. Even though his wife may be well equipped in biblical doctrine and application and spend a considerable amount of time instructing their children in the faith, a husband must be diligent to oversee and guide the spiritual training of his family (Eph. 6:4).

4. Attention

A Christian husband should be attentive to his wife. He should always do his best to set aside a substantial amount of time to be with his wife, enjoy her company, and seek to understand her better. In doing so, a Christian husband and his wife can grow closer to each other and build a stronger marriage that honors God in all (Prov. 5:18-19; Eph. 5:31).

5. Devotion

A Christian husband should always be faithful to his wife. Even when times are difficult due to financial, emotional, or physical challenges, a husband's personal happiness must always be subordinated to sacrificially loving his wife "as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her" (Eph. 5:25). In doing so, he honors not only his wife but also his Lord.

6. Enjoyment

A Christian husband should enjoy his wife. She is a precious gift from God given to comfort, support, encourage, and love him (Prov. 18:22; 31:10-12; 1 Peter 3:1). The more a husband values, cherishes, and nurtures his wife, the more she will reflect God's love as his radiant bride.

6 Ways a Christian Wife Cherishes Her Husband

By Le Ann Trees

There is a lot of confusion among Christians today regarding what makes for a godly marriage. Much of this controversy centers around how a husband and wife interact with each other. Here are six ways (in no particular order) a Christian wife cherishes her husband:

1. Companionship

A Christian wife should be her husband's friend. After God placed the first man, Adam, in the garden of Eden, he declared, "It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a helper fit for him" (Gen. 2:18). While she doesn't need to join in on all of her husband's activities, a Christian wife should enjoy spending as much time as possible with her spouse.

Even though we don't get to go as often as we would like, I love going fly fishing with my husband. It's a pretty good deal for me as he ties all my flies and helps me find good fishing spots. He never gets frustrated (at least he doesn't show it!) when I get my fishing line caught in the bushes, and he always comes over and helps me get untangled. We have a lot of fun, and it's wonderful to spend time together away from the usual routines of daily life.

2. Love

A Christian wife should always love her husband. Because Paul tells husbands to love their wives and wives to respect their husbands in Eph. 5:33, some Christians think this means that a Christian wife doesn't have to love her husband—but this is not the case at all.

All Christians are commanded to love their brothers and sisters in Christ, and this is especially true in marriage. When a man and woman get married, they make a vow before God to stay together until death parts them. To be in a relationship where love is one-sided—or there is no love on either side—is a great tragedy.

When Christians remember how God loves them so much that he sent his Son to suffer and die on a cross for them, this gives them courage and the will to love even in the most difficult of circumstances. When a Christian wife loves her husband with the love of Christ, this love can do much to soften the hardest of hearts.

3. Respect

A Christian wife should respect her husband. The Greek word the apostle Paul uses in Eph. 5:33 for the respect wives should have for their husbands is phobētai, which means to have a profound measure of reverence/respect for someone.

Some Christian women wrongly believe that the word “submit” in Eph. 5:21-24 means they must tolerate any kind of treatment from their husband. The Greek word Paul uses in these verses for “submit” is hypotassó, which refers to a wife’s “recognition of an ordered structure” in which her husband is the person to whom she should show appropriate respect “as to the Lord”. If a husband directs his wife to do anything that goes against her conscience, she always “must obey God rather than men” (Acts 5:29; 1 Cor. 8:12-13).

4. Help

A Christian wife can help her husband in a multitude of ways. This will look different in each family. While some Christians think certain work and household responsibilities belong to a specific sex, believers should not be bound where Scripture gives them liberty.

One important way a Christian wife can support her husband is in the area of counsel. In the Bible, we find instances where women gave their husbands good counsel or were discerning (Sarah in Gen. 21:12; Abigail in 1 Sam. 25:3) as well as instances where women gave poor counsel (Eve in Gen. 3:6; Sarah in Gen. 16:2). A Christian wife should seek to grow in knowledge and wisdom in God’s Word as well as in all her callings in life, so she can give her husband the best possible counsel in all circumstances (Prov. 31:10-31).

God never intended for a wife to be a “yes-person.” A husband bears great responsibility, and he needs his wife’s straightforward input. A Christian wife should be honest with her husband about any concerns she has regarding a particular matter to protect him from potential harmful consequences.

5. Devotion

A Christian wife should be completely devoted to her husband. This includes being faithful to her marriage vows, caring for her husband physically and emotionally, praying for him, and seeking his good in all things. A Christian wife should joyfully help her husband in his callings to the glory of God. She should be loyal, trustworthy, and look after the interests of her husband (Phil. 2:4). When a Christian wife honors God in her comportment in daily life, she also brings honor to her husband.

6. Self-Respect

A Christian wife honors her husband when she expects him to respect her in all circumstances. There is no excuse ever for a husband to harm his wife physically or emotionally. Paul is clear on this matter:

In the same way husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. For no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, just as Christ does the church, because we are members of his body. (Eph. 5:28-29)

When a Christian wife is in an abusive marriage, she needs to seek help from extended family, friends, civil authorities, and the leadership of a faithful church. This is why it is so important for Christians to be members of a church community that upholds God's Word carefully and provides proper oversight over its members. There is no situation where a woman should be abused—period. A Christian wife honors her husband when she holds steadfastly to standards that help him to be a godly man.

Because of our sinful natures, Christian husbands and Christian wives will not fulfill their duties to their spouses perfectly in this life. Thankfully, our hope lies not in our own works but rather in the perfect work of Christ done on our behalf. Christian marriage involves joy, sacrifice, commitment, and forgiveness. Our failures should keep us humble and direct us to daily seek God's help in loving our spouses to His glory in all.

Creation Moments

Proclaiming Evidence for Truth

THIS WEEK'S CREATION MOMENT

The Amazing Woodpecker

"And there you will serve gods, the work of men's hand, wood and stone, which neither see nor hear nor eat nor smell." - Deuteronomy 4:28

The woodpecker's tongue can stretch from three to five times its normal length in order to fish bugs out of trees. You would think that his tongue would have to be rooted in his tail to do that! Creation is filled with special designs that deny the possibility that life in all its complexity developed entirely by chance.

Consider the woodpecker. The woodpecker's tongue is rooted in his right nostril. Exiting the back of the nostril, his tongue spits into two parts, wrapping around his head between his skull and the skin, passing on either side of the neck bones, and then coming up through his lower jaw or beak. This gives the woodpecker a long enough tongue to stretch it out far enough to do an effective job of pest control on bug-infested trees!

Even evolutionists admit that it's silly to suggest that the woodpecker's tongue gradually got longer over thousands of years and began to grow under his skin. As one evolutionary scientist said about the woodpecker's tongue, "There are certain anatomical features which just cannot be explained by gradual mutations over millions of years. Just between you and me, I have to get God into the act too sometimes."

Why wait to call on God as a last resort? Let's begin with our wonderful Creator!

Team Expansion - South Asia

April was a full and meaningful month, busy, stretching, and filled with both challenges and encouragements.

A big part of this season has been continuing to get my new house fully set up and functional for the different ways I plan to use the space, both for business and other intentional work. While many of the goals I hoped to complete in April have carried into May, I'm grateful for the progress made and excited that I'm getting closer to being able to host more intentional events here very soon.

Outside of the day-to-day work, one of the highlights of April was traveling back to Himachal Pradesh for the first time after a few years. It was a gift to reconnect with like-minded friends, support them in their work, and explore ways we may collaborate in the future.

Some friends from that community also booked an Agra tour with my company before leaving India, and it was a joy to introduce them to the history and living culture of Agra during their first visit to Uttar Pradesh.

I'm thankful for this past month, and for all the ways God was at work throughout it

Continuing House Projects...

This past month has been focused on continuing to get the new building set up for the different ways it will be used in the months ahead.

Summer arrived early this year, with temperatures already climbing above 45°C (113°F). I'm thankful to have installed AC units and fans throughout the top sections of the house, which has made a big difference in the heat.

This month, my focus is finishing the ground floor for our office, cultural workshops, and other future events, while also preparing the upstairs space as a prayer room for prayer and worship gatherings as well as future trainings and studies.

I'm grateful for the steady progress and excited to be getting closer to opening the different spaces and begin hosting others here.

Visiting the Family...

Since moving out of the house with the family I was living with for the past two years, I've already had several chances to visit them. I'm grateful that even with the move, we've still been able to share quality time and meals together and I've noticed that intentionally going there for visits has resulted in deeper quality time with them.

This past week, a new family moved into the portion of the house where I had been staying, and it's been nice getting to meet them as well. I'm thankful for the relationships built here and how one season continues to lead into another.

Returning to Himachal Pradesh...

A few years ago, I was invited by a friend in SE Asia to visit a new region of India as she explored opening a business there and building local connections. Those trips became a pivotal part of my journey and how God directed me back to India.

This past month, it was special to return to that region and celebrate the grand opening of her company. It was also encouraging to spend time with old friends, have strategic conversations, and explore how our businesses may collaborate in the future.

KB Training continues...

Over the past few weeks, a local friend and I have also been working to develop a follow up program for the guys (and ladies) who recently took the Kingdom Business training that we facilitated. We are continuing to walk alongside them in their journeys to start new businesses as a way to connect with new people in their communities and share truth through those relationships. Please pray for these local partners and for opportunities for them to share through their work to have greater impact in their communities and see more lives transformed through their faithful sharing.

Praise Points

- I'm thankful for the progress being made throughout the house so far and for the opportunity to use the space for deeper work.
- I'm thankful for my friend's business opening and for the opportunity to visit and see how God is working throughout that community and ways we might collaborate for deeper Kingdom Impact.
- I'm thankful for a good time in Agra and the opportunity to show friends a new region of India for the first time and for bookings for the company.

Prayer Points

- Please pray that things continue coming together with the building and for the workshops we begin hosting this month to go well and for our company to get more tour bookings.
- Please continue praying for progress on getting a new local ID and registrations which continue to be a challenge to get approved and completed.
- Please pray for me, my local family and local partners in our work and for our Kingdom Business follow-up sessions to be fruitful

Would you, your family, or your friend group like to visit India?

I'd love to plan your journey through my travel company to take care of your travel needs and help you experience life and culture here firsthand. Please reach out to me via Signal app or email if you or someone you know would like to book a trip with us to come and visit and gain a deeper understanding of life in this region.
