MISSION FOCUS

David & Beth Larson serving with ISI students Inc (Cornell)

Our overseas trip from June 11 – July 3rd went well. Our time in Hawaii resulted in the beginnings of a working plan for restarting ISI ministry there through a church team that would collaborate with an Intervarsity staff who works with graduate students, including international students. In Japan, we visited the ISI staff that I supervise and visited an ISI conference near Tokyo. I organized the ISI returnee dinner which was attended by about 120 people (ISI staff and returnees). A well known sleep researcher, Dr. Yanagisawa, attended and was able to share his faith with the students. Our travel to China went smoothly and we visited 10 returnees in four cities. We were able to encourage those who are believers including one who will be starting online Bible study with David. We were encouraged that the faith of our friend, a surgeon, was stronger than we expected. We had good opportunities to share with unbelievers as well. Locally at Cornell, attendance for our summer meetings were sporadic but we consistently had about 16 attending in the second half of the summer. For our welcome picnic we were encouraged with 50 in attendance including several new students. Two meetings so far this fall have had 23 in attendance including some new students. We have a new venue this school year – Tabernacle Baptist downtown. It provides more space with rooms for children's programs which Beth is starting this year as well as she will be resuming International Women's Connection. Our next overseas trip will be October 19 – November 2 to Brazil and Argentina. It will be our first time to South America. Of all the continents, South America is probably the least developed in terms of international student ministry. We will visit two returnees in Brazil. We will have sessions with a group of African International students in Rio de Janeiro for training and encouragement. In Argentina, we will be doing exploratory work, finding out what is going on in terms of international student ministry and assessing the need and opportunities for future ISI work there. Please pray for our travels and for our trip to South America to stimulate new international student ministry growth and to be encouraging to the returnees we visit.
