Things that Last

What is the focus of your mind and your heart? There are a couple of ways to help you answer that question. The first, most obvious, way is time. If you made a pie chart of the 24 hours of your day what would it look like? One big slice of the pie would be sleep. Then there are a few slices of the pie of necessities that everyone needs to include in their daily lives like meals, personal grooming and working. That leaves about a third of your day to spend at your own discretion. The average American spends over 5 hours on their phone. That would include reading, shopping, talking, texting, playing games and “doom scrolling”. Add to that maybe you spend some time working out and watching television. None of that is necessarily sinful. But what does it say about your priorities?

Another way to answer the question of what is the focus of your mind and heart is where do you spend your emotions? What touches your heart on a daily basis? It could be family and friends. It could be politics and world events. It could be anger or revenge. Some of these will have a positive effect on you while others may have a negative effect. But the big question is, does any of this really matter?

Therefore we do not lose heart. Though outwardly we are wasting away, yet inwardly we are being renewed day by day. For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. So we fix our eyes not on what is seen, but on what is unseen, since what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal. 1 Corinthians 4:16-18

The very last time we see Jesus in the temple an event happened that we still talk about today. While rich people were contributing huge bags of money to the treasury, a widow lady dropped in only a few pennies. Jesus pointed out to His disciples that what she just did was greater and more important than what all the others did that day. As they were leaving the temple one of the disciples said to Jesus, “Look teacher! What massive stones! What magnificent building!” I’m sure Jesus wanted to cry. He told His disciples that they were focused on the wrong things. They were focused on temporary things that were going to be destroyed and not focused on things that will last.

We all have to spend time doing the daily with the mundane things we must do to survive. But don’t allow the things that will pass dominate your heart and your mind. Focus on the things that are eternal. Those are the things that really matter.
