

What is the Library of Things?

The Library of Things is a movement that more and more libraries are participating in. These are collections that have something much more than just books or DVDs.

Libraries are about ensuring that people in our community have equitable access to materials and knowledge. This collection will allow our guests to check out things that would be hard to access or that they may not want to own and store in their own homes. The Library of Things movement challenges people to rethink whether they want or need to own goods they rarely use. It also brings people together around a shared vision and reduces wasted resources.

This is part of the "sharing economy" that libraries have always helped create!

These items are all ones that you may need to use just once in a while and may be too expensive to justify purchasing for limited use. They are available to the public and can be checked out the same way as any normal library item.

The Library of Things was originally made possible by a Community Impact Grant from the Community Foundation of West Tennessee.
