SKILL SPOTLIGHT:

Active Listening

What is it?

Listening is more than simply hearing sounds. It is the ability to focus on important sounds, remember what was heard, and respond appropriately.

Why Is It Important?

Children who are strong listeners are better able to follow directions, learn new vocabulary, participate in conversations, develop early reading skills, and build self regulation.

How to Develop it

For Babies and Toddlers:

- 1.) Turn toward sounds
- 2.) Listen to short songs and stories
- 3.) Follow one-step directions
(Bring me the ball)

For Preschoolers:

- 1.) Follow two and three-step directions
(Bring me the ball and then grab your shoes)
(Bring me the ball, grab your shoes, and sit by the door)

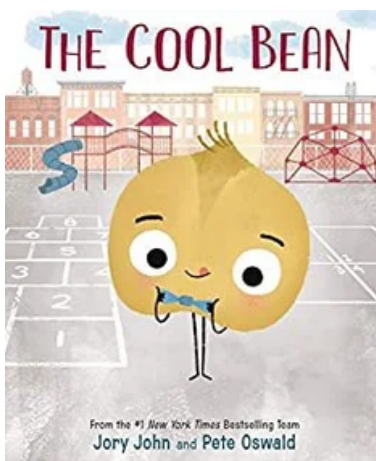

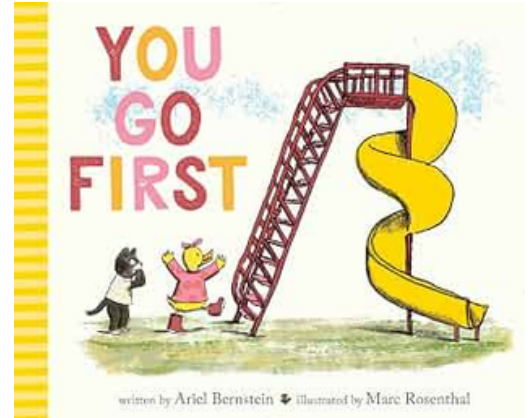

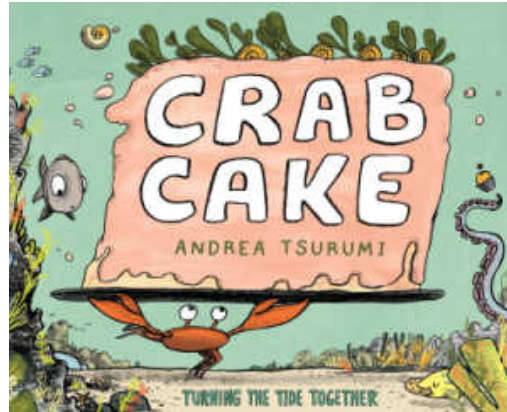

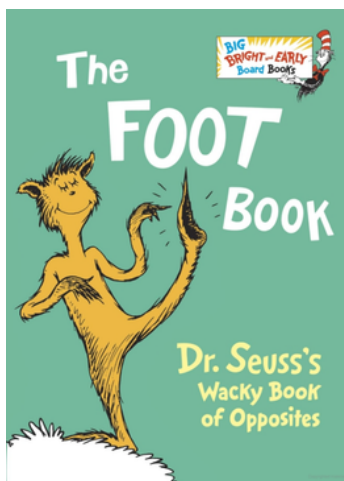

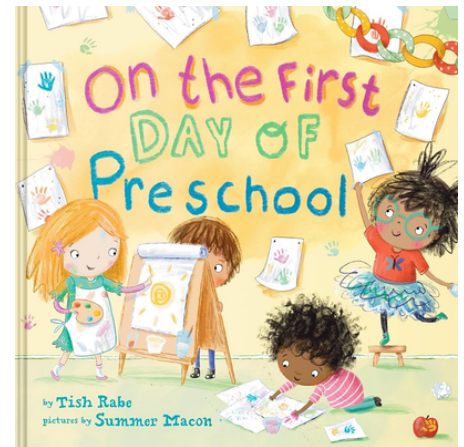

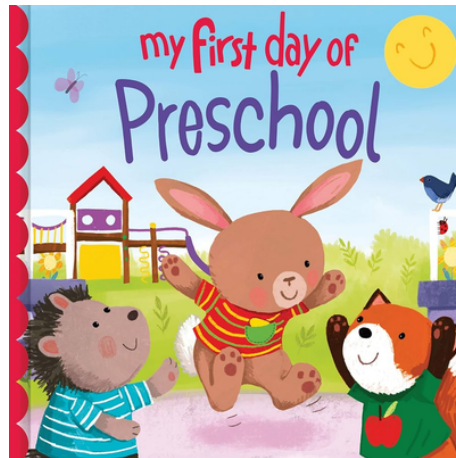

For Kindergarteners:

- 1.) Listen for specific sounds in words
- 2.) Remember details from stories
- 3.) Play games such as Simon Says, I Spy, and Freeze games with music
