Loving the Lost Through Prayer:
Week # 3 Western Coastal Nahuatl of Mexico

The Western Coastal Nahuatl (nah-WHAH-tl) are Aztec descendants living along the Pacific coastal regions of Mexico. Many Nahuatl people tend small, family-owned farms. They produce crops to feed their communities and to sell to other regions. They practice a type of folk Catholicism that integrates Catholic religious practices with animistic Aztec beliefs and local traditions, such as sacrificing small animals. It is not uncommon for members of this group to visit local witch doctors, called curanderos and brujas, to curse enemies. For help and guidance, many also make offerings to statues of the local Catholic saint or apparition (what they believe to be a historic appearance) of the virgin Mary.

Let's Pray: Pray the Western Coastal Nahuatl will turn in faith to Christ alone, not to witch doctors or statues.
