Loving the Lost Through Prayer:
Week # 4 Northern Conchucos Quechua Ancash of Peru

The Northern Conchucos Quechua Ancash (con-CHOO-cohs KAY-choo-ah-AHN-cahsh) live secluded in some of the most remote regions of Peru's Andes Mountains. Their lives are difficult. They work hard to farm potatoes and beans. Most families build their own small, adobe homes out of mud bricks that help provide warm shelter during the harsh Andean nights. This people group has a variety of beliefs. They worship an Incan goddess called Mother Earth, or Pachamama. They also visit shamans for healing and help with curses, and they bow to idols of local Catholic saints for blessings and miracles. Many live without hope of the gospel.

Let's Pray: Pray the good news of Jesus Christ will reach the Northern Conchucos Quechua Ancash people and fill them with hope for an eternal life in Him.
