Call to Worship

From Psalm 19

One: The heavens declare the glory of God!

Many: The morning skies proclaim the work of God's hands!

One: Day after day they pour forth speech;

Many: Night after night they reveal knowledge.

One: Without a word, their voice goes out into all the earth,

Many: And their words to the ends of the world.

One: Nothing is hidden from the sun's heat, and nothing is hidden from God's love.

Many: Let us worship the Lord together in glory and praise!

Prayer of Confession and Assurance of Pardon

God of Grace, You invite us to forgive others as we have been forgiven by You. But we confess that we would rather hold a grudge than offer forgiveness. Instead of seeing the face of Christ on each other, we gather our grievances around us and cling tightly to them. We keep a tally sheet in our heads of the wrongs committed by others, unable to clearly look at our own transgressions and omissions. Forgive our blindness. Transform our offense into generosity, and our self-absorption into selflessness. Remind us that score-keeping rarely leads to reconciliation. Help us treat others with kindness and love, even in face of insult or injury. Set us free to forgive ourselves and one another through Your transformative love. Hear us now as we open our hearts to You...

This 20th-century text was created to provide words for this traditional tune named for a small village on the Isle of Mull, off the west coast of Scotland. Through repeated use of "new" and "first," each morning is treated as a re-creation of the promise of the original day.

This English paraphrase is based on a longer Latin hymn traditionally associated with the footwashing ritual on Maundy Thursday, an enactment of Christ's "new commandment" that we should love one another (John 13:34). For a chant setting of the first line of the hymn see no. 205.
