What did this sermon tell us about God?

What did this sermon tell us about us as people?

What did you hear in this sermon that applied the most to your own life?

What did you find most surprising or challenging about Leviticus 21–22, and how did seeing the phrase "What's guarded is meant to be given" change the way you understood the chapter? Was there a moment in the sermon that helped you see God's heart differently?

The sermon emphasized that Jesus became the perfect Priest, Sacrifice, and Temple so that what was true of Him could become true of us. Which of those identities—priest, temple, or living sacrifice—is hardest for you to believe about yourself? Why? How might believing that identity change the way you approach your relationship with God this week?

The sermon ended with the challenge that people are seeing who God is by looking at us. Who is one person whose picture of God may be shaped by watching your life this week, and what is one practical way you can represent God's character to them?
