THE MINISTRY OF BEING PRESENT

Over the years, I've discovered something about ministry. Some of the most important things we do for people aren't particularly complicated. We show up. We listen. We remember their names. We pray with them. We walk alongside them when life gets difficult.

Sometimes the greatest ministry we offer is simply being present.

After more than 50 years in ministry, I can tell you that some of my most meaningful memories didn't happen behind a pulpit. They happened in hospital rooms, around kitchen tables, during unexpected conversations, and in those quiet moments when someone simply needed to know they weren't alone.

I've always believed that being a pastor is about much more than preaching sermons or leading programs. It's about loving people, building relationships, and sharing life together.

The Apostle Paul encouraged believers to 'Rejoice with those who rejoice; mourn with those who mourn.' (Romans 12:15)

That's a beautiful picture of what the church should be. A family that celebrates together, carries burdens together, and reminds one another that they're not alone.

As Wanda and I begin this new chapter with our Plymouth church family, I want you to know that Wanda is not only my wife, but also my partner in ministry. Her love, encouragement, and unwavering support mean more to me than I can express. She shares my heart for people, and I am grateful that we have the opportunity to begin this new chapter together.

One of the things we're looking forward to most is getting to know you. Not just learning names and recognizing faces, but hearing your stories, sharing in your joys, praying through your challenges, and building friendships along the way.

After all these years, I still believe that good ministry begins with genuine relationships, and genuine relationships begin when we make time for one another.

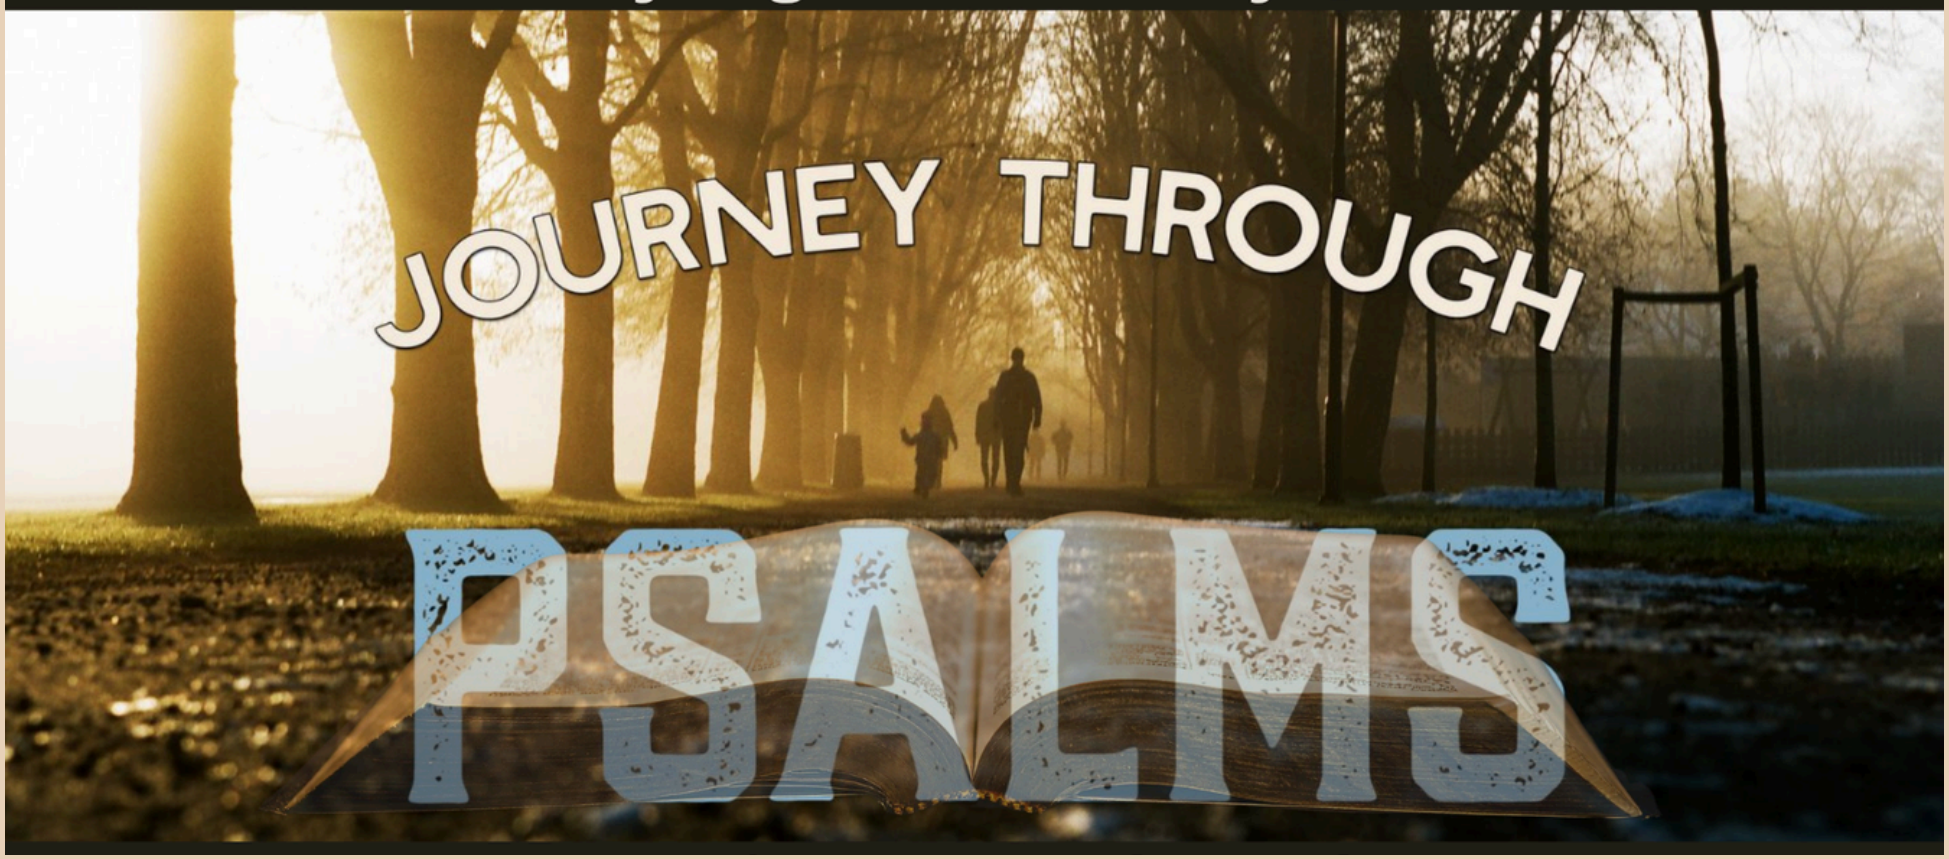

I'm grateful for the opportunity to serve alongside you, and I look forward to the privilege of being your pastor and your friend.

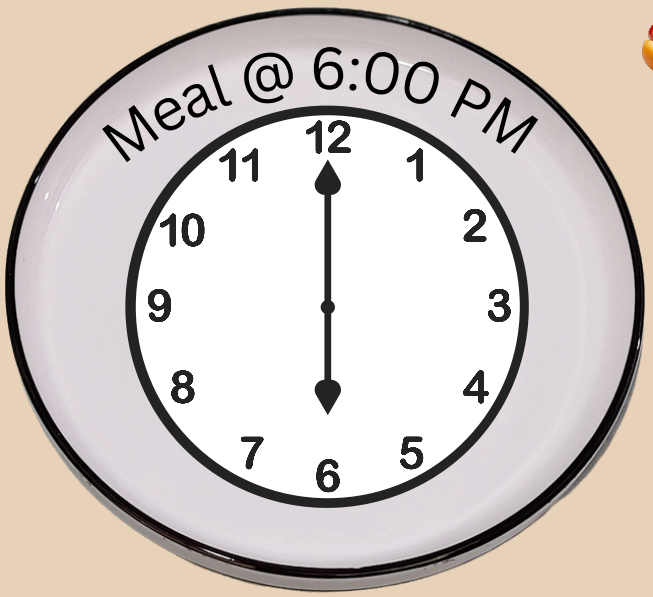

Pastor Ric
