

Constitution and By-Law Overview Training

A discussion about church administration guidelines, including three types of legal statements: The Constitution, By-Laws, and Articles of Incorporation. They serve as agreements among members and provide accountability for leaders.

Church and nonprofit leaders use these documents as rules to govern effectively. These documents are necessary in times of conflict or when church members need to be reminded of how God wants them to lead. These are the guardrails necessary for healthy church governance and action.

"Understanding and maintaining church governance ensures clarity, unity, and accountability. Take time to review and improve your governance documents to support a strong and faithful church structure". Pastor Tahlib McMicheaux.
