Discussion Questions:

1. How are the responsibilities of "adult children" toward their parents different than those of "minor children"?
2. How are the Golden Rule and the Law of Sowing and Reaping to be involved in the relationship between adult children and their aging parents?
3. The issues of later life (health issues, mobility issues, financial issues, and the ability to make decisions) have long been problematic to the relationship between elderly parents and their adult children. What are some Scriptural principles we should teach our young children in order to minimize tensions in the relationship later in life?
